

Irina Pasichnyk

*PhD, Associate Professor of the Department of General practice-family medicine of Kharkov National Medical University, Ukraine.
Coordinator of project of perinatal training "Mozart Effect"*

The great art of motherhood.... This concept is invariable throughout the existence of mankind. A pregnant woman and her pre-nate live in common information and the emotional environment. Closer contact than in this period of time you will never have. Therefore you have the opportunity to live this unique period in trust and love!

The most important is to establish sincere relationships, which would connect the mother and the baby, lay the foundations of formation of the mother's attachment. The live sound of a diverse range of musical instruments and sounds of the human voice creates a special emotional state, in which a maternal attachment arises.

The main idea of the project is the creation of an atmosphere, which contributes to the closest possible interaction with the child. Live performance of various musical compositions harmoniously affects the organs of feelings and the consciousness, actively forms the aesthetic perception of the world and world-view.

Enjoy and feel the birth of each melody, because it is at this moment the harmony of relations is forming. Listen to the music, imagine that it sounds just for you. Immerse yourself in the atmosphere of the divine sounds, feel the birth of each melody, focus on your feelings, surround by love of your kids who are here with you and those who are yet inside.